

Danish School of Media and Journalism
TV and Media Production
Course description
Fall semester 2022
Documentary Production
3rd semester

Number of ECTS Credits: 10

Aims:

The course will give the students theoretical and practical knowledge on the production of documentary films. Based on theoretical texts on the definitions and conventions of the genre, combined with film-analysis and discussions on contemporary developments in applied means of expression among documentary film makers, students should obtain an in-depth understanding of the genre.

Aiming at taking their visual and storytelling skills on to advanced level students will alongside the theoretical tuition, produce their own short documentary films, actively working with the dramaturgic tools from structure and character development to storytelling mode and visual expression. Furthermore, the course will train students story planning skills both concerning pre- and postproduction.

On the technical side the course will encompass workshops on advanced editing, sound and colour grading.

17.11.2023

Page 1 / 3

Pedagogical and didactic approaches:

The course combines lectures and theoretical workshops with practical exercises and assignments, both individually and groupwise, creating a common language and frame of reference for the students. This combination is aimed at translating theoretical knowledge into action.

The work of student groups developing, researching, casting, producing and post producing a short doc will be followed closely in repeated supervision sessions conducted by tutors. This will be supplemented by self-organized peer supervision and feedback, which will advance students ability to reflect on the strengths and weaknesses of their own work and that of fellow students.

The writing and re-writing of film concepts secures precision in storytelling and reflection of the creative process.

The course will be finalized with a common screening and feedback session for the entire class, to create a common completion of the course where students can learn from and reflect on both their own experience and that of others.

Production groups will consist of three students, and the groups will be put together by students themselves. This is aimed at securing the best possible motivation and cooperation in the demanding work process of the course.

Working groups will be either Danish or international. This decision is an effect of repeated complains on language difficulties in mixed working group in evaluations of previous courses from Danish as well as international students.

Tuition in class will be supported by the use of e-learning tutorials.

Tools:

C100 cameras, microports, Adobe Premier Pro, online tutorials on colorgrading.

Learning outcomes:

The students will obtain the following during the course:

Knowledge and understanding:

- Understand and reflect on the documentary genre and its development through time.
- Understand and reflect on the main contemporary challenges facing documentary film makers.
- Know, understand and use of expressive modes of the documentary genre.
- Know, understand and use different dramaturgic and storytelling models.

Skills:

- Plan, shoot and edit documentary productions with a duration of up to 10 minutes.
- Understand and work with sound and colour grading in post-production.

Competences:

- Entering group processes and give and receive guidance to and from fellow students during a production process in a constructive way.
- Overlooking the entire production process of at short documentary, encompassing idea-development, casting, handling of contributing characters both before and after filming.
- Reflecting on their own performances and productions, and those of fellow students.

17.11.2023

Page 2 / 3

Literature (to be purchased before the course begins):

Andersen, Niels Pagh (2021). Order in Chaos. Harper Collins Publishers.

Literature (hand out):

Nichols, Bill (2010), Introduction to Documentary. Indiana University Press (Second edition), p. 1-12 and 22-23

Nichols, Bill (2010), Engaging Cinema. W.W Norton & Company, Inc., p. 99-130

Bernard, Sheila Curran (2011). Documentary Storytelling, Creative Nonfiction on Screen. Focal Press, Taylor and Francis Group, Fourth edition, p.37-52

Preconditions for the exam:

Fulfilment of attendance requirements and/or submission of assignments and projects etc. are required for being allowed to take an examination. In this course the preconditions are:

Attendance: Students must actively attend all scheduled classes and class activities, as described in the workshop calendar.

Participation: Participation in group work and supervision is required

Compensation: If the student's absence from the course is more than 30%, the student must hand in compensation assignments as a precondition for exam.

Exam:

Graded using the ECTS scale with an internal examiner.

Documentary Production ends with a final assignment carried out in groups of three to four students.

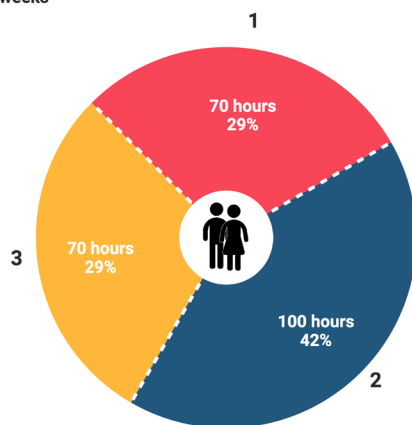

The final assignment consists of two equally important parts: An original media production and a written assignment. To ensure individual grading, the contribution of each group member must be noted, as there is no oral examination.

Study Activity Model:

The Study Activity Model

Documentary Production

240 hours in total
10 ECTS points
6 weeks

Category 1

The lecturer has primary responsibility for the study activities, and the students have co-responsibility through their preparation and participation. Participation by students and one or more lecturers.

Obligatory lectures, supervision, master class, film screen and analysis

Category 2

The lecturer has primary responsibility for defining the learning activities, and the students have primary responsibility for taking an active part in the planned study activities. Participation by students only.

Reading of literature, assignments

Category 3

Students have primary responsibility for the study activities, and the lecturer has co-responsibility for ensuring appropriate settings for the activities. Participation by students only.

Group work

Category 4

Students have primary responsibility for the learning activities, and the lecturer has co-responsibility for ensuring appropriate settings for the activities. Participation by students and one or more lecturers.

17.11.2023

Page 3 / 3

Approved by BBS, 2022-08-22

Edited 2022-09-07 (revised page numbers in literature hand outs)